Welcome to Country

Executive General Manager People & Culture message

It is with great pride that I present and welcome you to Australia Post Groups' Reconciliation Action Plan (RAP) 2020 – 2022. This is our fourth RAP, and third Stretch Reconciliation Action Plan and builds on our achievements to date, reaffirming our commitment to reconciliation.

Since our first RAP was commenced in 2011, we have achieved so much. We must continue our momentum and ensure organisation is demonstrating leadership in the support of reconciliation across our country. As of 30 June 2020, we now employ over 1,127 Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people which is 3% of our workforce. This is the largest proportion ever recorded for our organisation and is testimony to our unwavering commitment to be an employer of choice for our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and communities.

There have been some remarkable outcomes achieved within our previous Stretch RAP. A focus for us was to ensure more of our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander workforce aspire to become people leaders. It is important to us that we not only are an employer for our communities, but our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people are in roles of leadership and influence. The Australia Post Indigenous Emerging Leaders Program 2018 - 2019 is one such example. This program has been an overwhelming success, with 100% retention and 100% completion across both years the program has been offered. We have been able to engage, connect and inspire our people through this program; in this program our alumni attain a Certificate IV in Leadership & Management.

The program enables us to invest in a pipeline of talent for future opportunities. We will continue investing in the careers for our People, and we have committed in this Stretch RAP 2020 – 2022 to the continuation of this program, whilst also investing in additional leadership programs for our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander talent.

During the last three years our investment and spend with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander businesses, has been extremely pleasing. In support of the Commonwealth's Indigenous Procurement Policy, the Australia Post Group would like to ensure we have a diversified supply chain, where we can enter into sustainable procurement arrangements with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander businesses. We were recognised as an industry leader, with four awards at the 2019 Supplier Diversity Awards; including Corporate Member of the Year, and Most Outstanding Impact. We directly procured in excess of twenty-one million dollars with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander businesses.

In this Stretch RAP we are making commitments to continue to be an employer for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, where over the next two years we will reach 3.15% of workforce from our First Nations. Social procurement will continue to be a focus, and we will increase our partnership with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander businesses in our supply chain. We will continue supporting improvements in childhood literacy through our book delivery partnership with the Indigenous Literacy Foundation. With the support of our 4,343 Post Offices across Australia, we are uniquely placed to support reconciliation.

I wish to thank our RAP Implementation Group, leaders from across the business and Reconciliation Australia for their guidance on the development of this plan which has been approved by the Australia Post Board of Directors and prepared for lodgement with our Shareholder.

Sue Davies,
Executive General Manager, People & Culture

Reconciliation Australia CEO message

On behalf of Reconciliation Australia, I congratulate Australia Post on its formal commitment to reconciliation, as it implements its third Stretch Reconciliation Action Plan (RAP), its fourth RAP overall.

Formed around the pillars of relationships, respect, and opportunity, the RAP program helps organisations realise the critical role they can play in driving reconciliation across their work and area of expertise. Through the creation of this Stretch RAP, Australia Post continues to contribute to the ever-growing community of RAP organisations that have taken this consideration and goodwill, and transformed it into action.

Australia Post's reach and ability to drive the reconciliation movement is undeniable, with a long history of operating and engaging in the space that predates its first RAP. As one of Australia's largest retail networks, with over 4,300 post-offices and almost 80,000 people in its employ, Australia Post connects the country—promoting opportunity, access, and innovation.

This Stretch RAP builds upon the considerable experiences, challenges, and successes of Australia Post's previous RAPs. Australia Post is one of Australia's most diverse workplaces, and accordingly it has applied this strength to maximise its ability to drive reconciliation.

Using thoughtful and deliberate approaches to its commitments, initiatives like its Indigenous Employee Care Program have ensured excellent outcomes, such as its ability to raise its number of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander employees to 3% of its workforce. Australia Post's approach has seen the organisation win four awards at Supply Nation's Supplier Diversity Awards, as well as lead to it publishing a social procurement white paper, to share its ongoing learnings and experiences in this area.

Australia Post is honest and reflective about the challenges it has faced over its reconciliation journey. One of these challenges has been fostering a greater appreciation and understanding of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures and histories within its workforce. As such, this ambitious Stretch RAP sees Australia Post acknowledge this gap in its commitments, with a renewed focus on cultural learning for all of its staff members. Australia Post are likewise looking to use its sphere of influence to push for deeper change, supporting education opportunities for staff to better understand the Uluru Statement from the Heart and principles of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander self-determination, included in its Better Decisions and Better Future training. By continuing to embed its strengths, while also acknowledging and addressing areas in which to expand, Australia Post is building strong and sustainable foundations upon which to ensure successful reconciliation outcomes into the future.

On behalf of Reconciliation Australia, I commend Australia Post on this ambitious, thoughtful, and engaging Stretch RAP and look forward to following its ongoing reconciliation journey.

Karen Mundine,
Chief Executive Officer, Reconciliation Australia

Our vision for Reconciliation

We have a rich history dating back more than 200 years. In 1809 former convict Isaac Nichols was appointed to the role of Postmaster for New South Wales. After initially using his own home to sort mail that was collected from a wharf in Sydney, the country's first Post Office was opened by Nichols in George Street, Sydney.

This year marks 32 years of formal commitment to employment of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people, when in 1988 we launched our first formal Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander employment strategy. In actual fact our organisation has been providing careers for Aboriginal and Torres Islander people for well over a century. The appointment of Aboriginal woman, Mary Helen Cuper, in 1874 as postmistress at the mission station of New Norcia, Western Australia, is testimony to our enduring commitment and connection with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and communities.

At Australia Post, we are proud of our commitment to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander employment. We have made significant progress in providing employment and career opportunities for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people. In 2020, we achieved our largest ever proportion of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people in our workforce.

Reconciliation is so important to us; we continue our commitment to support improvements in social and economic wellbeing of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and communities. Everyday our organisation is directly engaging our communities, and we are proud of playing a leading role in influencing greater awareness of reconciliation. Some 32 years ago when we commenced our first Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Employment Strategy, it was in an era long before workplace "Reconciliation Action Plans" (RAPs) had even been considered. Australia Post's first Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Employment Strategy pre-dates the formation of the Council for Aboriginal Reconciliation, the predecessor to Reconciliation Australia.

There is no greater challenge, and opportunity, facing our nation than the need to come to terms with the history and treatment of Australia's First Peoples. Australia Post will provide opportunities for employment and career development, build sustainable business growth in partnership, and will support economic participation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people within our business. Our actions toward reconciliation are guided by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander voices and views, and the cultures and wisdom they hold.

Our vision for reconciliation is where all Australians can create connections and opportunities that matter for all, where everyone is included, and people are valued. We believe reconciliation can be achieved when our communities value trust, inclusivity, empowerment, and safety.

Reconciliation at Australia Post is...

-  Working in partnership across our business to achieve parity in our workforce for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.
-  Addressing inequality to create positive social change, by working with the strength and resilience of communities.
-  Supporting Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander businesses to innovate, grow and succeed.
-  Connecting Australia's most remote communities and country towns to anywhere on the globe.
-  Showing respect and earning respect of others.
-  Being proud to recognise the diversity of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures across Australia.
-  Improving Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander childhood literacy standards.
-  Setting high standards, delivering to them and being accountable.

Our Business

Over our long history, our social purpose and commitment to the community has remained the same; to create connections and opportunities that matter to every Australian. At the heart of every Australian community, our people are a regular presence to rely on. We've always looked for ways to link communities together and listen to what matters to them. We'll always be there for Australians in need.

Australia Post is committed to creating a diverse workforce and an inclusive culture that drives performance, innovation and productivity, where our people feel supported and valued. We support employees to develop and contribute to their full potential in an environment of inclusion and respect. This is our organisational commitment.

Our total workforce (inclusive of direct and extended) is almost 80,000 people who come from all walks of life – and have all kind of interests. But one we all share is a passion for making things better, for every Australian. Our self funded government business enterprise is owned by all Australians. In the past decade, we've paid over $1.5 billion in dividends to the Australian Government.

We're proud to be one of Australia's most diverse workforces. Our people represent 146 nationalities and speak 64 languages, 3% are Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander (not including extended/contractors) and 5.7% have a disability. We also have a thriving LGBTI+ community, and maintained gender pay equity last year.

As our country was impacted by extreme bushfires, we collected $1,077,853.83 over the counter for the Australian Red Cross Disaster Relief and Recovery Fund. To add to this, more than $20,000 has been donated to the Fund by our employees via our own workplace giving program.

Bank@Post continues to demonstrate our ability to provide critical banking services to customers beyond simple transactions. It is another proof point of how we serve our communities. Our Post Offices now providing access to banking services across Australia and have partnered with more than 75 banks and financial institutions to make this happen, we processed 16 million Bank@Post transactions.

We have supported our customers and Bank@Post partners and remained in communities to continue to provide essential banking services.

We're also one of Australia's biggest supporters of small business, with two thirds of our local Post Office network and parcel contractors being small businesses themselves.

We have one of Australia's largest retail networks with 4,343 Post Offices, including 2,500+ in rural and remote areas.

Last year, we processed 2.7 billion items, delivering them to 12.3 million delivery points across Australia and to 114 countries across the world.

Our Purpose and Values

Our Reconciliation Action Plan sets out our commitments to supporting our people, customers and community with reconciliation. It includes our practical actions to inform our contributions to reconciliation we make and in the communities we operate. The actions in this plan are underpinned by our purpose and values.

Our purpose is to connect people with each other and the world. We unlock opportunities for everyone.

Our values underpin everything we do - the services we deliver, the products we provide, and importantly how we behave and communicate with each other and our customers.

We are guided by our values of Trust, Inclusivity, Empowerment and Safety. Our values are the ties that bind us together, make us unique and will help ensure our people, our customers and the Australian community are at the centre of everything we do.

Trust	Inclusivity	Empowerment	Safety
Do the right thing	Respect everyone	Find a way	Be safe and well

2017 – 2020 Reconciliation Action Plan Achievements & Highlights:

Building our workforce – Inclusive recruitment

Key to the success of achieving a more diverse workforce, inclusive of our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples was the partnership across our Enterprise. We're delighted to have achieved our commitment in our last Reconciliation Action Plan, to increase the number of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples to 3% of our employee population. Central to our success were our collaborative partnerships across the business.

Sue Davies, Executive General Manager, People & Culture says "We are proud of the important role we all play and recognise that every member of our team has an impact on the experience of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander candidates."

“ Our continuing commitment to increase cultural awareness across the business and ongoing strategy development to reduce recruitment barriers is a reflection of the important contributions and value of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples to help shape the future of Australia Post. ”

Sue Davies

Supplier Engagement - Creating partnerships with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander businesses

DCL Locksmiths & Security is an independent Aboriginal family owned and operated business supporting local and regional communities based in Dubbo. DCL were engaged and successfully contracted through a market competitive Request for Proposal for the supply of Post Office Box key cutting services. The key cutting services was previously performed internally by Australia Post employees. It is predicted that through the outsourcing of this service, DCL will build its capacity to increase and leverage its capabilities to provide similar services on a national scale to other small and large businesses on a local and national level. Australia Post envisages that further opportunities may arise through this new partnership with DCL.

ARA Indigenous Services has been contracted by our Facilities Management team where we have been able to build capacity and develop a partnership for the supply of cleaning services across all Australia Post facilities in South Australia, Northern Territory and Western Australia. The ARA Indigenous Services contract includes a robust and detailed Indigenous engagement program and clear guidelines, controls, and performance measures to ensure the ongoing success of the partnership for the life of the contract. Engagement targets have been built in the contract

Supporting our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander employees

A feature of our previous Reconciliation Action Plan (2017 – 2020) was the improved engagement and reduced attrition of our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander workforce. The implementation of the Indigenous Employee Care program (ECP) for our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander employees was a significant reason for these outcomes.

Managed by our National Indigenous Manager, and delivered by our Indigenous Inclusion Consultants, the success of the Indigenous ECP has been integral to strengthening established Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander employee, and Manager relationships across the business. The program enables us to build strong relationships across our growing workforce.

Rebekah Williams, Indigenous Inclusion Consultant said “The ECP program is imperative for our people, it’s about building on relationships, cultural kinship and connection with one another. The valuable service we provide caters to varied needs of the individuals we visit like; Health and Wellbeing, Cultural, Self Development, Career Guidance, General Support, Social Media connection, business and program updates.”

“ Our primary focus as the Indigenous Inclusion Consultants, through ECP, is to empower and guide our Indigenous Australian workforce in embracing career opportunities and growth within Australia Post. ”

Rebekah Williams

In addition to the Employee Care Program we continue to produce two publications the ‘Rapup and Proppa Choices’ newsletters. Simone Sexton, Indigenous Inclusion Consultant said “The Rapup features our RAP progress and achievements across the year, featuring our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander employees. The Proppa Choices publication was created in partnership with the Australia Post Health & Wellbeing team, to increase greater health awareness and access for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander employees and their families”

Emerging Leaders Program

In 2019 we celebrated a further 16 of our talented Indigenous leaders from NSW & QLD Deliveries, Post Office Network and StarTrack teams, graduating from our Australia Post Indigenous Emerging Leaders Program with a Certificate IV in Leadership & Management.

The aim of the program is to inspire, connect and engage our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander employees who aspire to become people leaders.

Speaking at the celebratory event at our Cleveland Street office in Sydney, Julie Muir a Postal Delivery Officer (PDO) from our Ingleburn Delivery Facility, said “This course has impacted me in so many ways. I’m incredibly proud of all my colleagues in the program – we care for each other – they are all now my family.”

“ The program continues to deliver wonderful results. In the two years we have offered the program, we have seen 100% retention and 100% completion, with many of the 2018 graduates of the program securing promotions in their career. We are confident many of this year’s leaders will achieve the same success ”

Chris Heelan,
National Indigenous Manager for Australia Post

Warren Mason, Area Manager NSW/ACT Rural North Post Office Network said “The IELP program was what Mandy needed to give her career aspirations direction and more importantly the tools to make the next step. I saw considerable growth in confidence in Mandy herself as well as in the interactions she had with her team in her role as a people leader.”

“Mandy went into the program knowing what she wanted but not what she needed or how to get there. This program gave her not only the theoretical knowledge but more importantly the tools to implement this knowledge in the workplace to achieve outcomes” Mr Mason said.

“ The conclusion of the formal learning component of the Indigenous Emerging Leaders Program (IELP) was a ready, set, go trigger. I was inspired, energised and focused on moving forward in my career. Graduating from the IELP has meant an elusive long-term goal of becoming Postal Manager Narrabri is now a reality ”

Mandy Foxe,
2018 Alumnus

Luke Brennan, A/G Postal Transport Coordinator at Tuggerah Van Services, NSW and 2019 Alumnus said “I expressed this amazing experience and opportunity through a tattoo with the words “Deadly 16” which represents my incredible journey and completion of the program. I wear this as a badge of pride much like my Emerging Leaders polo shirt.”

“ I’m passionate about inspiring others to be brave and seek out their goals, and hopefully inspire some more future leaders ”

Luke Brennan,
A/G Postal Transport Coordinator

Program sponsor EGM People & Culture, Susan Davies, said “It is a collaborative effort between our Engagement & Diversity and Enterprise Leadership teams and delivered in partnership with TAFE NSW and Cbeyond Coaching. We have had 36 colleagues commence and complete the program.”

Traineeship program

We have maintained a successful national School Based Traineeship program for our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students in years 11 and 12. We first commenced our investment with our traineeship program in 2007, when we hosted trainees in our Mail Network throughout Queensland. The program now offers a number of opportunities across our Post Office Network and in our Deliveries Network, both School Based and Adult traineeship pathways.

“ I wanted to draw as much from this learning experience as possible, and relate those skills attained in my traineeship to my future career choices ”

Zoe Brown,
School-based trainee hosted at our Alexandria Delivery Facility

Another inspiring participant in our traineeship program Steven Finn, school-based trainee at Werribee Plaza Post Office said “I feel very lucky and fortunate to have been given this opportunity with Australia Post to take on this school base traineeship.

When I first started this traineeship my attendance at school was poor along with my attitude towards my schoolwork.

Through this traineeship I have become more proactive to my schoolwork and I feel more confident in myself.”

“ My aspirations moving forward is to stay with Australia Post and help other young Indigenous people like myself into these programs Australia Post provide ”

Steven Finn

There has been so many of our wonderful people leaders participating and supporting members of our communities across our school based and adult traineeship programs.

Helen Uren, Postal Manager at Werribee Plaza Post Office supports Steven Finn and talks to the measurable benefits to her extended team. “This program has been invaluable for Steven and a pleasure for us as his business host. The experience he has gained from his time with us has been enormous.”

“The traineeship, has set him up for the future with a transferable skillset and qualifications, our team is very supportive of Steven and I feel proud that our organisation is really making a difference.” Ms Uren said.

Garma Festival – experiencing cultural exchange

Chris Heelan, National Indigenous Manager led the Australia Post team in 2017 and again in 2018 who stayed in tented communities in the red dust sharing in conversation with Yolngu community, hearing from Elders and champions and immersing themselves in culture. Colleagues joined Mr Heelan as they had the privilege of representing Australia Post at Australia’s leading cultural exchange event.

Talking about her Garma experience, Stephanie Roache from the Corporate Responsibility team said, “I felt very privileged to attend Garma. It was a life changing experience. The Yolngu people welcomed us with open arms, and this is part of their deeply caring nature. Their culture and community is thriving and we could learn so much from their way of life.”

Being part of Garma raises our awareness, understanding and knowledge across issues impacting Indigenous communities in Australia and globally. And the learnings that they bring back will be channelled into supporting our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander programs.

Minchinbury, StarTrack – Investing in our talent

Focus on Apprenticeship Program

The team at our StarTrack Minchinbury facility in Western Sydney, NSW has made remarkable progress and leadership of our Reconciliation Action Plan. Through the leadership of Troy King, State Operations Manager NSW/ACT we have witnessed growth of our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander workforce, increased promotions of our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander colleagues securing roles leading others, and the team supported our Indigenous Emerging Leaders Program in 2018 and 2019, with three Alumni from this site.

It is for the continued demonstration of our values, the StarTrack Minchinbury facility was identified to expand our employment pathways and commence our Indigenous Mechanical Apprenticeship program. In early 2020, supported by our National Fleet, State and Senior Managers from the across the business we commenced a program to work with members of our community who have a passion, mechanical aptitude and commitment to safety. Under the supervision of our senior mechanics, the Australia Post Indigenous Mechanical Apprenticeship program commenced.

Perhaps, the most poignant demonstration of the value to support such programs to us all is best represented from Josh Scales, first year Mechanical Apprentice. “Everyone at StarTrack have been really supportive of me and have helped set me up to start by..the team have been so welcoming and are amazing to work with. I’m so happy to be part of this opportunity. The mechanical apprenticeship is setting me up for a great future.” Mr Scales said.

“ I’m personally impressed with how quickly and well Josh has adapted to the team, challenges and fast paced environment that we operate in. I have appreciated the opportunity to pioneer the Indigenous Apprenticeship program for StarTrack ”

Mark Armour,
Workshop Manager at Minchinbury StarTrack

Inclusive and empowered communities

The StarTrack Minchinbury facility continues making remarkable progress towards an inclusive and empowered culture. One of the proof points has been strong local engagement of our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander employees, with a commitment to address underrepresentation of First Nations employees at supervisor and manager level. The Australia Post Indigenous Emerging Leaders program was seen as opportunity to make a difference.

“ All too often there is a corporate program released with great intent and it disappears never to be seen again. Not in this organisation though. One of my particular favourites is the Indigenous Emerging Leaders program as I have seen this evolve very quickly since its inception, we are seeing the results in motion ”

Troy King,
State Operations Manager NSW/ACT

The Minchinbury facility has seen three of our colleagues graduate from Indigenous Emerging Leaders program. A member of the 2019 program was Charles Gale is a proud Darug man who has been with Australia Post for six years and was recently promoted to PM Senior Supervisor at Minchinbury. In this role, Charles is one of 4 Senior Supervisors on the PM shift at Minchinbury, leading over 350 employees on a daily basis, working on a site which processes, at times, in excess of 100,000 items per evening with an average weight of 16 kg and despatches over 80 B Double sets each and every day of the working week. We are proud, that Charles is also an alumnus of our Indigenous Emerging Leaders program.

“ I believe the mentoring part of the program was a key influencer in preparing me for the current role I’m in. Mentally having my life and career mapped out was challenged by the questions Angivin from beyond Coaching asked, which really helped me to put things into perspective. Without the confidence instilled by the program, I may not have had the confidence to take on one of the biggest challenges of my professional career ”

Excellence in procurement and supply chain diversity

In 2018, Australia Post launched a social procurement white paper, “Unlocking the Value of Social Procurement and Supplier Diversity: Leading Practice Insights. The paper launched is an industry leading look into the Social and Indigenous Procurement and the challenges it faces. The white paper included key insights from industry leaders and described the challenges and the path forward to create a vibrant economy of diverse suppliers.

“ Social procurement leverages an organisation’s buying power to deliver social value, above and beyond the value of the goods or services being procured. It builds diversity into the supply chain, and creates job opportunities for under-represented groups, reinvigorating marginalised communities ”

We continue with our membership of Supply Nation, so we may access Australia’s largest database of verified Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander businesses. We know this assists us with our implementation of our supplier diversity targets in our supply chain.

Australia Post has been recognised as a leader in the supplier diversity space, winning four awards at the 2019 Supply Nation’s Supplier Diversity Awards, including Corporate Member of the year. The awards recognise companies, government agencies and individuals who are helping create a prosperous, vibrant and sustainable Indigenous business sector.

Australia Post also received the Outstanding Impact Award, awarded to an organisation or individual that has made an outstanding impact on supplier diversity or the growth of the Indigenous business sector. Stephanie Roache, Corporate Responsibility Manager at Australia Post said supplier diversity is a core aspect of Australia Post’s strategy to advance the UN Sustainable Development Goals, particularly Goals 8 and 10 – Decent Work and Economic Growth, and Reduced Inequalities. “We recognise our local presence is important to the connection and viability of many communities across Australia, and that we have an important role to play in building an inclusive society, with safe, fair and fulfilling work for our extended workforce,” said Ms Roache.

“ We believe supplier diversity is one of the greatest opportunities to create economic, social and environmental value, and we have an ambitious target to spend $40 million with Indigenous businesses in our supply chain by 2020. This is a key action within our Stretch Reconciliation Action Plan ”

Respected as a benchmark for excellence, a CIPS Australasia Supply Management Award is the most prestigious recognition an organisation or individual in the procurement or supply chain profession can receive. In 2020, Australia Post was shortlisted in three categories, including the award for Supplier Diversity - Social and Indigenous procurement. Although the eventual winner of this category was not Australia Post, to be shortlisted and recognised by the professional body dedicated to procurement professionals is a fantastic achievement. We continue to be proud of the partnership we have entered with many Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander businesses.

Australia Post was awarded in the four categories it was nominated for:

- Corporate member of the year
- Supplier diversity advocate of the year
- Procurement professional of the year
- Most outstanding impact

Partnering with the Indigenous Literacy Foundation

At Australia Post, we believe literacy sits at the heart of how we help people connect, so it's important to us that all children have the opportunity to learn to read and write. That's why in 2020, we formed a 3-year partnership with the Indigenous Literacy Foundation (ILF) with a goal of helping children in remote Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities get better access to quality, culturally relevant, new books through the ILF's Book Supply Program.

Over the next three years we anticipate delivering around 300,000 children's books into the hands of thousands of Indigenous children in more than 400 remote communities.

Australia Post's Head of Community, Nicky Tracey, said Australia Post is committed to helping improve access to books and literacy especially in remote Australia.

“ Sharing the love of books, reading and writing can help people feel connected, especially children. We know that for children in isolated communities, getting access to books can be tough, and learning to read largely depends on the availability of appropriate books. ”

Nicky Tracey,
Head of Community for Australia Post

“ Through our partnership with Indigenous Literacy Foundation, we are able to take advantage of our vast delivery network and support the delivery of books to children in these remote regions, giving them more opportunities to build their literacy skills,” Ms Tracey continued.

Karen Williams, Executive Director of the Indigenous Literacy Foundation said Australia Post's support of the Book Supply Program has been critical during 2020 in helping them to reach children in some of the country's most remote communities during strict COVID lockdowns. “We only work with remote communities because they have little access to books and literacy resources and the barriers to literacy are enormous,” Ms Williams said.

“Over the last 10 years, through respectful engagement and our approach, the number of remote communities we engage has grown”.

“ At the start of the year, when lockdowns were first mooted, there was a surge in book orders. We are extremely grateful to our partner organisation, Australia Post for delivering these orders and the feedback we continue to receive from teachers, parents and children, is testimony to the positive impact of the book supply program. ”

Karen Williams
Executive Director of the Indigenous Literacy Foundation

By the end of 2020, Australia Post will have delivered more than 98,000 free books, to schools, healthcare centres and service organisations on behalf of the ILF.

Symbols - recognition of our First Peoples

The 12th of July 2019 marked a significant moment in Australia Post history and for our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander employees and communities, with the installation of all three flags Aboriginal, Torres Strait Islander and Australian outside our Cleveland Street Offices in Sydney. The flags stand in addition to the reconciliation mural which is also permanent fixture at this site. It marks the first major Australia Post site to have all three flags installed in front of the building, which now stand permanently and proudly nearby

We recently continued this important work, on the 4th of September 2020 we once more proudly installed the Aboriginal, Torres Strait Islander and the Australian flags at our Alexandria Delivery Facility in Sydney. This facility has the largest Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander workforce across the Australia Post Group.

Christian Jackson, General Manager, North - Deliveries said, “The installation of the flags is a genuine step forward in acknowledgment and to respectfully, and inclusively connect Indigenous peoples and communities to Australia Post”

With the installation of the flags permanently at both sites, we are incredibly proud of how our organisation supports the Indigenous Australian communities. “I’m sure our Indigenous employees and our customers feel equally proud” said Mr Jackson.

Walaaybaa Experience - cultural awareness and competence

While we have progressed during our previous Stretch RAP, we acknowledge there have also been challenges. One of the biggest challenges has been to ensure our total workforce has a greater appreciation and understanding of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and cultures. We intend in this RAP to address and improve in this area.

In 2018 and 2019 to acknowledge and celebrate Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures, and to understand the importance of building and maintaining respectful relationships with First Nations People, we partnered with Aboriginal business Walaaybaa to engage a number of our teams in face to face learning sessions.

“ The workshop’s key objective is to raise cultural intelligence. That is, to increase the participants awareness of, and engagement across, cultures ”

Billy Williams
Founder & Facilitator of Walaaybaa

Chris Heelan, National Indigenous Manager said “Billy Williams is an amazing connector of people, his powerful style of engagement will allow you to be challenged and informed. Billy’s session delivers realism for us all and will guide you on how to take the next steps”

NAIDOC & National Reconciliation Week

National Reconciliation Week

National Reconciliation Week runs annually from the 27 May to the 3 June, two dates that commemorate significant milestones in the reconciliation journey – the successful 1967 referendum, and the High Court Mabo decision respectively.

As one of Australia's largest and most inclusive organisations, we continue to support and provide opportunities for our First Peoples. National Reconciliation Week (NRW) is a time for employees to reflect on how we can contribute to advancing reconciliation in Australia. We continue to mature in our approach and programs.

We're committed to building an inclusive economy by investing with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander businesses, providing employment and career opportunities and working towards sharing the richness of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities. We will continue to walk together with courage.

In 2019, we held a number of local NRW activities across our outlets, facilities and offices, including NRW morning teas, a Lunch n' Learn session, and NRW breakfast events.

A practical way we demonstrate reconciliation is by providing an Acknowledgement of Country at many of our formal meetings, team meetings, workshops and Town Halls. This can sometimes be challenging without understanding the importance of the Acknowledgement to Country.

To build awareness, we created a video where our people shared their story and talk to the importance of Acknowledgement, respect and working together. We encouraged our people to share the video with their colleagues to help people understand how we all can be part of respecting and building understanding of our Traditional Custodians.

Celebrating NAIDOC Week

We continue to see many of our people continuing to get behind NAIDOC week.

Our people celebrated in true Australia Post style with morning teas and BBQs right across the country. Many of our facilities and outlets decorated with cultural symbols.

“It was amazing to see so many of our teams, facilities and outlets celebrate and embrace NAIDOC Week 2019,” said Chris Heelan, National Indigenous Manager. “Our teams held morning teas, luncheons, and invited community members into their facilities to engage and build awareness of our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities.”

“We showed our support by attending and celebrating members of our community for their excellence at this year’s National NAIDOC Awards in Canberra along with many of our colleagues also volunteering or attending NAIDOC community events. “I’m extremely proud of everyone who participated this year,” he said.

Each year Australia celebrates the histories, cultures and achievements of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples for NAIDOC Week. In 2019, we focused our celebrations on our facility and outlets across the country. In total we had 87 local NRW events hosted across our operations.

To further strengthen our support for NAIDOC week, the Payroll and Engagement & Diversity teams collaborated to update the Payroll system (SAP) and Time & Attendance Systems to include NAIDOC Leave and Ceremonial Leave for Australia Post Group (APG) Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander employees.

Brendon Glover, Postal Delivery Co-ordinator from Hervey Bay Delivery Centre attended Penrith’s NAIDOC Day a few years ago, “I was able to use two half days which worked well because I was able to go to Penrith after work and take my family in to Sydney the next day.”

Corina Nwobu, Postal Services Officer from Upper Mt Gravatt QLD Postal Office, said “Having supported NAIDOC leave is important to me, as it allows us to celebrate and share the beauty of our culture and heritage, especially for our next generation”.

The NAIDOC and Ceremonial leave options are available across Australia Post, StarTrack, Decipha, SecurePay and POLiPay. If our employees identify as Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander, they can use this leave to engage with celebrations held during NAIDOC Week.

Our Focus

Over the next two years of this plan, we believe Australia Post has a strong responsibility to demonstrate leadership in advancing reconciliation goals with our Aboriginal and Torres Strait workforce, peoples and communities. Australia Post continues to be committed to reconciliation and will mobilise our organisation to support the community make progress towards a reconciled Australia.

To achieve this commitment, Australia Post through this plan has identified a number of strategic focuses. To achieve the greatest chance of success we are:

Committed to employment and careers for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples	Supporting the growth of social procurement for strong enterprise and economic development	Leadership to ensure we drive reconciliation within our sphere of influence	Community partnerships to improve mental health and wellbeing;	Improve children’s literacy for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people

Community Focus: Supporting communities through Grants

Our grant programs reinforce our commitment to supporting local organisations and connecting communities to thrive. They provide opportunities for smaller community organisations to receive funding for projects that connect people and positively shape our nation.

Between 2017 to 2020 we awarded $721,567 in grant funding to community organisations. Of this, $72,000 has been granted to 15 projects supporting Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Australians, representing 10% of our total investment.

2019 Community Grants Program

In 2019, we re-launched our Community Grants program, with a focus on supporting projects that helped people connect with each other through group activities, reduced barriers to participation in community life and developed skills and leadership capability to strengthen community networks.

There was a broad scope for the types of projects nominated, as we wanted to enable our workforce to support organisations and projects they were passionate about.

Our RAP

Australia Post has a proud history with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. We have long held a strong connection with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples – we remain committed to work alongside supporting our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. The development of this RAP ensures a framework exists for an ongoing and formalised commitment to reconciliation. It is significant this RAP signifies thirty two years since we commenced our first formal employment strategy in 1988 for our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

Through this RAP, we aim to create a welcoming, inclusive and nurturing environment that is socially, culturally and spiritually safe and accessible for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples now and into the future. Through our actions we shall focus on the strength of our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, so in partnership we truly can continue on the path towards a reconciled country.

Our third Stretch RAP is strengthened by our collective sense of determination, with a genuine desire for inclusivity and reconciliation. The activities outlined in this RAP are based on the three core areas of respect, relationships and opportunities, and are the responsibility of all of our people.

Our RAP will challenge our organisation, it is ambitious, and it will stretch us. It is through this RAP that we demonstrate the path ahead towards reconciliation. Extensive engagement process has informed this Stretch RAP. We have come some distance in the last three years – though, by no means, have we come far enough. We are now ready to continue to ‘stretch’ our commitment. The importance of reconciliation is undeniable and remains a key focus area at Australia Post.

We will continue our focus on increasing the employment of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people in our workforce. We want to create further access and build partnerships with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander businesses through our social procurement investment. We want to improve customer satisfaction with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, and we want our extended workforce to have greater awareness and knowledge of our communities.

We are committed to supporting improvements in childhood literacy, through our partnership with the Indigenous Literacy Foundation (ILF). We intend to play our role in ensuring children have access to books across many of our remote Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities. We are confident our RAP will make a profound difference.

In addition to our moral and ethical motivations for creating a RAP to contribute towards addressing the injustices of the past, we believe reconciliation makes good business and economic sense.

We offer this Reconciliation Action Plan as a logical extension of our previous three RAPs – ‘Innovate’ (2012-13) ‘Stretch’ (2014-17) and ‘Stretch’ (2017-20). All of those RAPs built on Australia Post’s history of engagement with communities right across Australia, continuing to work to achieve social and economic parity for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

The RAP is championed by our Managing Director & Group CEO and is supported by the RAP Implementation Group. Importantly, to ensure we have Aboriginal and Torres Strait representation on the RIG, we require at least 25 per cent of the members to identify as Aboriginal and or Torres Strait Islander. The RAP Implementation Group (RIG) consists of the following people, and monitors the development, implementation and reporting of the RAP:

- National Indigenous Manager (Chair) #
- General Manager, Talent Remuneration Culture & Capability

OFFSET PROJECT

CATEGORY OVERVIEW

Arnhem Land in the Northern Territory is prone to extreme, devastating wildfires that affect the landscape, people, plants and animals. These projects are owned exclusively by Aboriginal people with custodial responsibility for those parts of Arnhem Land under active bushfire management. Local rangers conduct controlled burns early in the dry season to reduce fuel on the ground and establish a mosaic of natural firebreaks, preventing bigger, hotter and uncontrolled wildfires later in the season.

The projects provide employment and training opportunities for local rangers while supporting Aboriginal people in returning to, remaining on and managing their Country. Communities are supported in the preservation and transfer of knowledge, the maintenance of Aboriginal languages and the wellbeing of Traditional Custodians.
